CHANGER

Changer is 396 years old, but his real number is five. His powers are the power to dance on his nose and a super secret dough blaster (it's a blaster that shoots dough into people's faces). He works doing clown stuff in the arctic clown sauna at the bottom of the deepest waters of the Mariana Trench.

He lives only with his mother. His father passed away. He was on a ship and there were some evil guys who shot bombs out of the back of their thing that flies and blew up the ship while his dad was still in it, and his daddy was super duper dead and his bones were showing and his blood sank to the bottom of the sea. (Because he died!)

Changer has no villains. Except for one. Her name is Geeky Weekly. She is an old wizard who lives at the top of the Earth. She has no powers—except for magic powers—and she gets older if she uses her magic powers.

Back before, Geeky Weekly cracked open a house with a skyscraper in it and that was the only thing that had the power to bring people back to life. (That's why Changer's dad can't come back to life.)

THE KETOWACKAS

Changer lives at the bottom of the Earth. In a giant, humungous carrot town. He drives a car that turns into a mega super speed jet. On the way to school there was an accident that blocked the road, so Changer changed into a bunny and hopped over.

A helicopter animal saw that and said “Who is down there?”

And then this animal (who is actually a plant) dived down and then he shot his cables (that was before he dug down) into his body and then the cables didn't even hurt because he used his super monster powers to break his body of the cables, and he ran and turned back into his self.

Meanwhile, Changer reached school to find a wolf breaking open the school. Changer turned into a lion and chewed him up and spit him on the roof. But he got a cone snail sting because his blood is actually made out of a cone snail harpoon.

He changed into his real self before the teacher saw him. Then he was doing his class stuff: writing stuff, reading stuff about where Peter Pan lives. He was a secret member of the Ketowackas, sworn to protect the town from evil evil eeeevil villains!

At recess he wanted to ride the slide, but it was broken. So he turned into a mechanic rabbit, and he fixed it. Then he turned into an ant and climbed up the slide. When he got to the top of the slide he turned into a rabbit and boinged off the slide and did every single obstacle: boing, boing, boing, onto the frozen lagoon and then dived into the deep waters of the deekos*.

Author's Note: Deekos are the animals that never talk but still want to translate a person.

MARIANA TRENCH

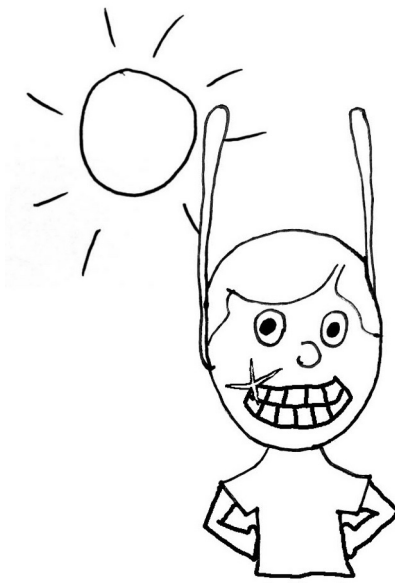

Changer swam to the Mariana Trench, and then he held his breath for three days, I mean ten hundred days. I mean nine hundred days and a week. He dives down, deeper, deeper and finds a hurt creature. He turns into a medic penguin and uses his bandages to wrap up the creature's boo boo.

He changes back into his own self and swims to the surface and leaps out of the water and then turns into fly fish mode: his tail starts to come out of his feet, and he uses it to swish so fast the wind gets under the wings and he glides.

He glides over the mountain, the tallest mountain. Then he glides into space.

Changer flies into space but all the planets were six miles away, so he dives back down. He flew right through Geeky Weekly's home at the top of the Earth. But Geeky Weekly wasn't home. She was on the top of the Earth—West. So Changer dives through Geeky Weekly's house without making any holes.

He was walking home from school without any superpowers, and it was already night time. His mom said "It's time to brush your teeth." He got two arms and brushed, brushed, brushed. As he brushed so hard, more arms started growing out. His teeth got so shiny and bright that they blew up the moon. So there was no more darkness ever.
